2025 NOVEMBER CCSS S06: Turning Evidence into Action: Implementation Science Tools for Sustained Success (1.00 clock hour)

Course Description: This course introduces participants to the principles and methods of Implementation Science (IS), the study of strategies to promote the systematic uptake of evidence-based practices into routine care. Through interactive learning, participants will explore how IS-leading practices can help close the research-to-practice gap, improve patient outcomes, and strengthen organizational readiness for change.

1445 - 1545 (ET)

Learning Objectives:

1. Explain what implementation science (IS) is and how IS leading practices can help close the research to practice gap.
2. Identify and apply appropriate IS tools and templates to current and future military health projects.
3. Analyze a case study demonstrating the application of IS leading practices and extract lessons for future implementation efforts.
